

KICK-START YOUR WRITING!

ONE-DAY INTENSIVE WORKSHOPS WITH AUTHOR JESSICA DUCHEN

NEXT EVENT:
Sunday 31 January 2010

10.30am – 5pm
in London, SW14

£65.00 per person, including lunch and light refreshments

“I’ve always wanted to write, but...”

There’s always something to stop you from writing: time, space, or simply not knowing where to start.

Is this you? If so, this special one-day workshop could be just what you need.

In a small group setting, we explore ways into writing through discussions, exercises and practical pointers to help release those blocks and start to plan your story.

Advance booking is essential - places are strictly limited, so can only be guaranteed once payment is received.

For further details, please email kickstartworkshops@gmail.com or tweet @jessicaduchen

JESSICA DUCHEN’s writing includes three novels, Rites of Spring, Alicia’s Gift and Hungarian Dances, journalism for The Independent, stage works, biographies, short stories and an acclaimed classical music blog. She gives talks for organisations ranging from schools to the Royal Festival Hall. “It is very rarely that I find a new writer whose work I love so much” – Katie Forde.

What the students have said:

“Thank you for doors opened!” – Sebastian, London W6

“That day was full of thought-provoking suggestions: thank you.” – Mary, London SE1